La Table Madada

International Cuisine, Seafood & Fish,

Formerly a carob warehouse where the king's traders stored their goods in order to export them, via the port, to Europe, this local steeped in history offers a restaurant of fish specialties with a menu with flavors of the Ocean and Morocco.

Under his magnificent stone arches our chef works the fresh fish from our coasts, the shells and crustaceans arrived the same day, giving the spotlight to seafood.

The top of the poster is held by a spider crab gratin to swoon although there are serious competitors with the tenderloin of beef, often flambé before your eyes, a real spectacle, the sea bass in salt crust or the couscous lobster and salmon with the allure of three stars with its presentation aged and molded in a circle.

Dar Marjana

Moroccan Fine Gastronomy

This Riad was transformed in 1980 by CHAOUQUI D'KAIER and LOUIS CHARLES BACCONIER into a table d'hôtes.

Since its opening, it has quickly become the essential and authentic place in Marrakech; actors, singers, artists, personalities, politicians have left their mark in the guestbook that you can consult on site, since the tradition continues...

In the old medina, lanterns illuminate the dead end at the end of which you will discover the DAR MARJANA restaurant.

You will start your evening with an aperitif depending on the weather on the terrace overlooking all of Marrakech or in the patio of the thousand and one nights before sitting down to eat. Dining at DAR MARJANA is discovering the traditional ceremonial, the quality and authenticity of Moroccan cuisine, the tables are low, the sofas light and soft, the high candlesticks placed on the floor, roses everywhere in bouquets...

Le Grand Café De La Poste

French, Moroccan, Mediterranean, European

After being closed for twelve years, it was taken up in 2005 by a French group who also own the Bo zin in Marrakech, and who launched La Cantine du Faubourg in Dubai and Eugène Eugène in Puteaux just outside Paris.

The challenge was to revive this mythical place, to give it back the cachet and the allure it had at the beginning of the twentieth century. Today, the Grand Café de la Poste proudly overlooks / dominates the Place du 16 November and revives the authentic lively atmosphere of Marrakech.

The Interior design of the Grand Café de la Poste allows visitors to discover the eternal Moroccan style that combines the bistro spirit of the last century, wooden chairs studded in copper, marble countertop, natural leather banquettes, huge black and white checker board floor tiles and moulded mirrors worthy of the largest brasseries.

In the evening, the chic brasserie
