DAY 05

MARRAKECH | DEPARTURE

Breakfast at hotel, This is the end of a wonderful dream that takes you to Marrakech airport or to Casablanca airport according to your international flight.

The Ouled Taleb estate in the Benslimane region, founded in 1926, 50 km north-east of Casablanca, is the oldest wine cellar still in activity in the Kingdom. The estate carried out its first harvest in 1927.

In 1968, Thalvin was created and operated the cellar of the Ouled Thaleb estate on nearly 500 hectares, planted only with noble grape varieties of French origin. The Domaine des Ouled Thaleb understood from its beginnings that the future of Moroccan wine is no longer the wine industry, but in the era of cooperative estates and cellars.

Preferring quality over yield, noble grape varieties, such as Syrah, the estate is a pioneer in the art of viticulture in Morocco.

Benslimane Wineries

The hillside vineyards and the mild temperature of Morocco make the region a privileged wine-growing region.

By combining the experience of oenologists and the quality of the terroir, the estate has been able to expand its range and initiate a real quality policy.

Undoubtedly, the domain of Ouled Thaleb is now one of the flagship domains of Morocco.

Moroccan Cuisine

Enjoy A Cooking Class

The secret of Moroccan gastronomic art lies in the skilful dosage of a mixture of spices.

Moroccan cuisine is characterized by its variety of dishes mainly from Berber cuisine, with Arab, Jewish and Andalusian influences.

Despite its common features with the cuisines of other North African countries, Moroccan cuisine has retained its originality and unique cultural specificities.

Known for its aromas, spices and the hospitality of its inhabitants, Morocco is increasingly coveted for its cuisine. An art closely linked to the history and customs of the country.

From international rankings to international rankings, Moroccan cuisine has become one of the attractions of the Kingdom. Many travelers around the world praise the variety of dishes, which come from many backgrounds and various influences.

Moroccan cuisine reflects the history of the country and the different populations who have settled there. The tagine comes from the Berbers; these brought dates, milk, cereals, bread, almonds, fruits and herbs. The Arabs brought spices, dried fruits, nuts and bitter-sweet combinations; the Moors introduced olives, its oil and citrus fruits while the Jews notably shared their preservation techniques such as those of candied lemons or pickles, not to mention the British who, in the eighteenth century, imported the famous tea and the colonists French who have left behind a culture of cafes, pastries and even wine making. But the two great imprints of Moroccan cuisine in fact remain the Arab and Andalusian influence.

Get the chance to experience our cooking class in Morocco, to share our traditions and culture. This opportunity is an enjoyable participation to discover the Moroccan cuisine and know the secrets of the best Moroccan recipes in an entertaining way.
